INVRA Treuhand AG establishes a new office in Erfurt, the heart of Germany

Since 1 October 2014, the audit company INVRA Treuhand AG has been providing auditing and consulting services from its office at the Thuringian capital. The experienced auditor Bianca Engel and the renowned tax advisor Christian Franke will be leading the new Erfurt office.

“The fact that Erfurt is centrally situated makes it a perfect location for INVRA. From this hub, we have easy access to our clients in the whole of Thuringia, the neighbouring federal states of Hesse, Lower Saxony, Saxony-Anhalt and Northern Bavaria”, says Jürgen Gold, Member of the Management Board of INVRA. “I am especially pleased that we were able to recruit the colleagues we hoped to find for our new office located directly beside the Thuringian State Chancellery.”

Bianca Engel, auditor and tax advisor, and Christian Franke, tax advisor, are not only renowned economic experts, but have also deep ties with the region. They have joined INVRA from a medium-sized audit firm in Erfurt. “We will be able to offer the entire service portfolio of INVRA in Erfurt which comprises audits of annual, interim and consolidated financial statements of companies of all sectors and legal forms as well as reviews, due diligence audits and company valuations alike and also extends to special and internal audits. Of course, traditional tax advisory services will be part of our portfolio, too,” says Ms Engel.

INVRA’s office in Erfurt is already the second location to open its doors this year: In January 2014, an office in Hamburg was set up in addition to the already established INVRA offices in Berlin, Munich, Cologne and Stuttgart.

INVRA’s expertise comprises both auditing and tax advisory services as well as business consulting. International groups as well as medium-sized and municipal enterprises, including but not limited to numerous energy supply companies, are among its clients. The audit firm INVRA Treuhand AG works in close cooperation with Becker Büttner Held, one of the leading law firms in the field of energy and infrastructure law in Germany.
